

The heatmap displays the frequency of 20 information types across four categories. The color scale indicates frequency, with dark blue representing low frequency and red representing high frequency. The 'What is the solution?' row shows the highest frequency of information, particularly in the middle columns.